

POLICY

COVÉA FINANCE INTERNAL AUDIT

Update:
January 2023

I. Background

Under article 62 of Delegated Regulation (EU) No 231/2013 and articles 321-83 of the French financial markets authority (AMF)'s General Regulations, Covéa Finance, in its capacity as an asset management company approved by the AMF, is required to establish an internal audit function that is separate and independent from its other functions.

Covéa Finance is a simplified joint stock company with a collaborative management team and a Supervisory Committee. It is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Covéa insurance group, subject to the regulatory requirements of the insurance sector and regulated by the French Prudential Supervisory Authority (ACPR).

In 2016, Covéa Finance decided to create a team dedicated to periodic control in order to secure the entire system and maintain a certain autonomy in the assignments and work entrusted to this unit. Such work had previously been carried out by external service providers or with the help of members of the team responsible for internal control.

In 2022, Internal Audit was strengthened with the appointment of a team leader and the recruitment of a new employee as an Internal Auditor (junior). To date, Internal Audit has two dedicated members to carry out the audit assignments entrusted to it.

This policy sets out the framework for the internal audit function and how it operates, covering all aspects of its work, from the preparation of its assignments to the follow-up of its recommendations.

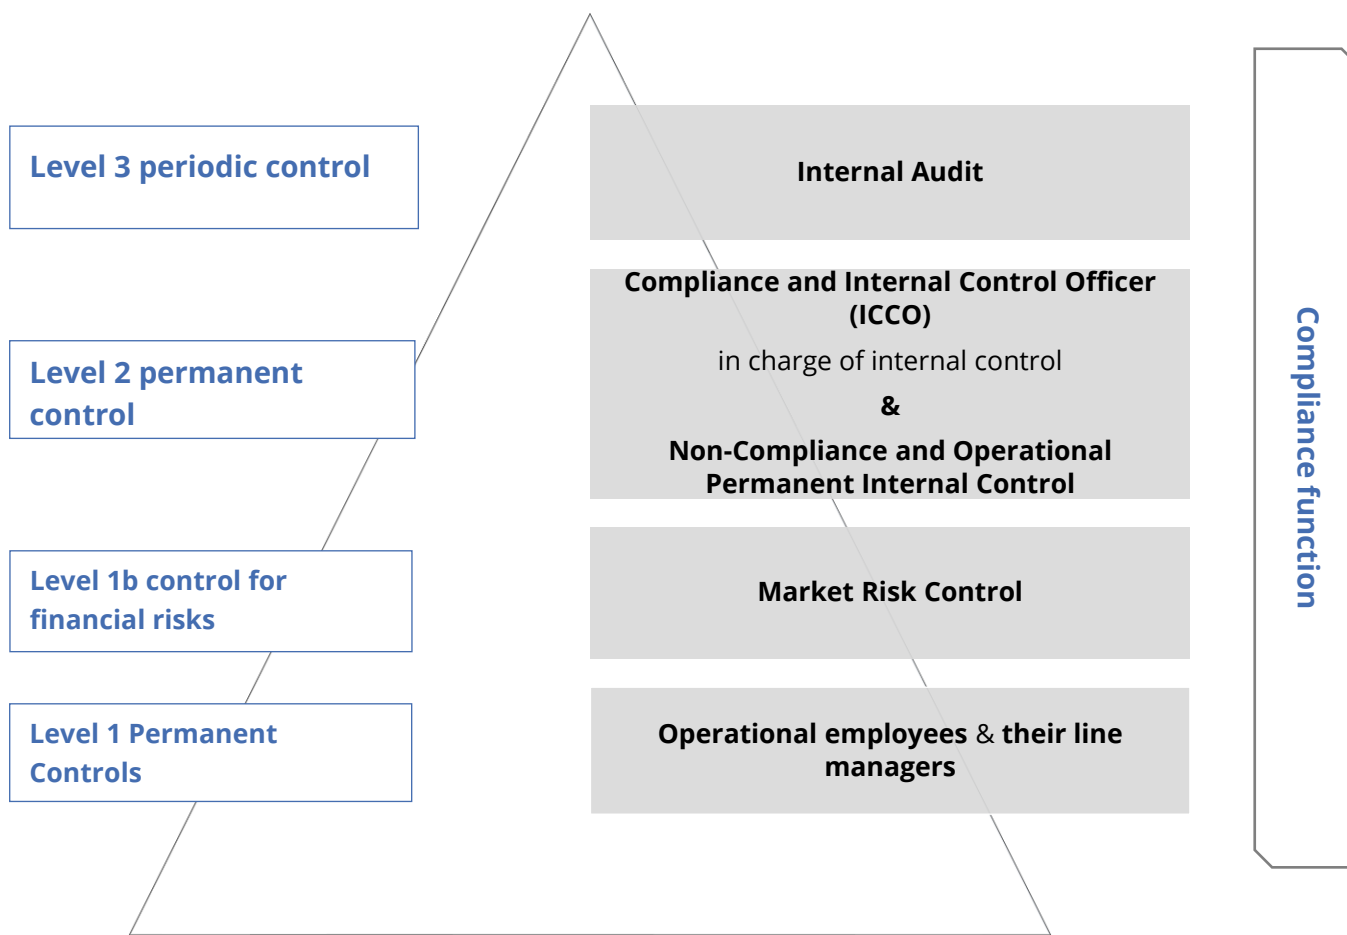

II. General Principles

In accordance with the Order of 9 March 2006, the company's internal control system includes an internal audit function.

Internal audit is a component of Covéa Finance's control system. It intervenes at a third level of risk control, designed to assess the effectiveness of the compliance and internal control system.

The first two control levels constitute permanent control. The first level of control is conducted at the operational level by employees and line management, while the second level of control is exercised by internal control.

The control system, shown in pyramid form, shows that each control level covers a wider scope with a finer degree of detail than the one above it. The information reported from the different levels of the control system provides a comprehensive and measured view of the risks inherent to the company.

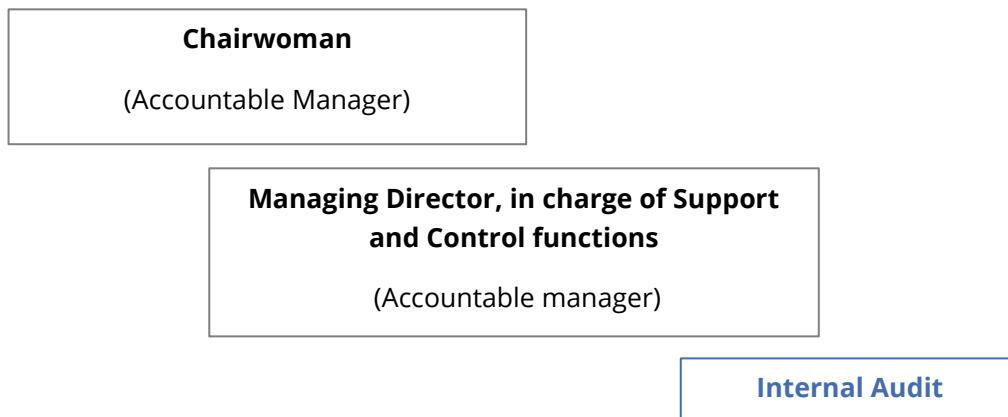

Covéa Finance's internal audit department prepares and conducts its audits based on three main goals:

- Meeting the needs and concerns of the company's governance, notably those of the Chairperson;
- ensure the audited activities comply with the regulator's requirements;
- Assessing the entire level 1 and 2 permanent control system.

III. Scope and organisation of internal audit

The Internal Audit function reports to an accountable manager. Internal audit is placed under the responsibility of Ludovic Jacquier, MD in charge of support and control functions.

Internal audit has a duty to intervene in all areas and sectors of activity of the company and to assess its internal control system. To comply with our professional obligations defined by the AMF, Internal Audit is separated from the ICCO in charge of Permanent Internal Control

Internal audit contributes to improving the organisation's risk management. Periodic audits provide assurance that the company's operations are compliant and effectively carried out by employees, and the resulting recommendations remedy any inadequacies detected.

The function is carried out by the dedicated team, however it may use external service providers under its responsibility and direction for technical assistance, additional resources, and to obtain a market view, etc.

A multi-year audit plan is prepared by Internal Audit, shared and validated during meetings of the Audit and Compliance Committee. It is prepared to cover Covéa Finance's main activities by including the orientations and priorities of Corporate Governance and in particular those of the Chairperson. The internal audit plan covers a five-year cycle. It is reviewed and adjusted each year according to the work to be carried out and/or the emergence of new risks.

IV. Preparation of the internal audit plan

The audit plan's construction is based on the following:

- Analysis of Covéa Finance's main risk levels. To this end, sensitive 'core business' activities are reviewed annually under one of their components (Equity Management / Fixed-Income Management / Multi-management / Research / Risk Control / Trading)
- Taking into account changes affecting the company's processes, activities or legal scope, and examining the work of the UCITS' statutory auditors, the principals or the management company,
- The orientations and possible requests of the members of the Covéa Finance Executive Committee and the Supervisory Committee;
- Comments on the summaries of the work of internal audit and of the Risk Committee (led by Risk Control),

- Examination of the conclusions of controls or investigations carried out by the supervisory authorities that regulate Covéa Finance,
- Examination of the work of Covéa Group's Audit and Internal Control Department,
- Assessment by the internal control or internal audit teams,

V. Conduct of internal audit assignments

The assignments carried out are based on the audit plan approved by the representatives of the Audit and Compliance Committee. However, the plan must be flexible enough to include during the year additional audits decided on by Covéa Finance's General Management or requested by the AMF.

Within the predefined assignments, the internal auditor has free and unrestricted access to documents, files and tools, as well as to Covéa Finance employees and managers.

An audit assignment is divided into three periods comprising the following five steps:

PREPARATION PHASE

- After the scope of the assignment has been specified by the Head of Internal Audit, the assignment letter is emailed to the manager of the area to be audited. The objective is to satisfy the requirements and concerns of the Chairwoman by incorporating regulatory expectations. The letter specifies, in particular, the audit's scope and objectives, the main points to be audited, the initial phase and the resources (internal and/or external) used to conduct the audit.
- A preparatory phase enables information to be collected about the audited area, the scope of the audit to be understood and its various stages to be planned.

IMPLEMENTATION PHASE

- The analysis phase involves conducting interviews and examining the information gathered. The auditors produce their diagnosis based on the strengths and weaknesses identified in the audited area.
- Partly conducted using computer data, a test phase is then carried out to substantiate the findings.
- During the assignment, as and when required, the auditors notify the auditees of their findings in order to provide explanations for any anomalies found and seek their acceptance of the diagnosis and recommendations.

COMMUNICATION PHASE

- Internal Audit produces a provisional audit report of the work carried out. The findings are accompanied by recommendations for the audited area. This report is presented to the relevant managers, enabling them to formulate their observations or confirm their agreement with the audit recommendations. In the event of any disagreement, they must explain their position.
- The final audit report is then sent to the Directors responsible for the audited scope. It will then be supplemented by any corrective actions decided upon and the time frame for their implementation. A summary is then shared during a meeting of the Audit and Compliance Committee.

Once the report has been validated, it is then distributed to the relevant managers. It is made available to the internal control teams, the members of the Supervisory Committee and Group Internal Audit.

VI. Follow-up of Internal Audit's recommendations and activities

Once the report has been circulated, Internal Audit monitors the implementation of its recommendations at the formalised quarterly deadlines. This report is intended for distribution to the members of the Audit and Compliance Committee.

Internal Audit ensures the effective implementation of the recommendations through interviews, document collection, and tests. Recommendations remain open until Internal Audit deems that there is reasonable assurance of their having been implemented.

Conclusions regarding the progress of implementing the recommendations are recorded in a quarterly summary sent to the managers of the audited area and the members of the Audit and Compliance Committee.

Internal Audit issues a quarterly activity report informing the members of the Audit and Compliance Committee of the progress of the audit plan and the status of follow-up on the audit recommendations. It also monitors the implementation of recommendations issued following audits carried out by external entities such as the AMF, Group Internal Audit, etc., during which the internal auditor plays a coordinating and supervisory role.
